Questions & Answers Question: Why don't Leliana and Cullen recognize Morrigan in Dragon Age: Inquisition? Answer: We don't see then when they first meet Morrigan. The first time we see them all together is in the War Room, by which time exchanged pleasantries. Question: I hate the "Wicked Eyes and Wicked Hearts" quest in "Dragon Age: Inquisition. That said, after I meet Morrigan, I go to the servants' quarters. Am I then supposed to fight and explore losing court approval for the next ten minutes? Or do I go straight back to the ballow explore. Don't worry about court approval because in the conversation with Florianne, you can easily get it all back if you choose the dialogue in this guide. You have to explore that area to move forward with the quest. Be sure to follow the guide for the Halla statue locations, too. Question: In Dragon Roor Halla gon't open the door later on? Answer: Yes, you can't open every single door because there aren't enough statues. If you want to open the door in the lower garden. However if you want to finish Sera's quest or get all the caprice coins then you'll have Playing an archer in "Dragon Age: Inquisition," I was looking at a list of unique bows in the game. I read somewhere that getting Tenasarin required killing Florianne. At least that is how I remember it, and I cannot find that page again. Do you know if that is accurate, or perhaps something that was page again. The first time we see them all together is in the war and cultive. Answer: You fight and Age: Inquisition, does using a Halla statue on one ave to not open Celine's bedroom door. Question: atched out? Answer: You can buy Tenasarin in ables. Question: Is there an option for Gaspard to have all the power and Briala to be the puppet on the throne in Dragon Age: Inquisition? Answer: I doubt that the option exists as there would never be an elf on the throne, especially if Celine was killed for her to get there. © 2017 PoppyPoppy (author) from Enoshima, Japan on July 04, 2020: Thank you 2020: First, really appreciate the guide. Second, I think you're a little confused on the balcony sides in stage one. You say "Find the storage key on the same balcony. Head to the area on the opposite side to find the halla statuette. Use the key to open the storage room directly below you." But the room is with the statue, not key, And then later list finding the statue on the same balcony you listened in on the nobles on. Not a big deal, but I did have to start over because I used the statue thinking I was going to use the key. Taylor on January 08, 2020: I am at a level ten so I haven't been able to finish the fade rift battle. I am an elf rogue archer, do you know how I can beat it with Sera, Dorian, and Cole? I ke was the first thing that came up. I appreciate it so much and I love that I got to see the ways to make it turn out how I wanted it to. Thank you so much. Poppy (author) from Enoshima, Japan on September 05, 2019: Many people don't like this mission. Hopefully with the guide you managed to get through it is this one bit. This mission seemed rushed to the point that just slapped things together. Paula on July 10, 2019: Great guide, I use it every time I play this game. DAI is awesome, can't wait for DA4. Poppy (author) from Enoshima, Japan on May 19, 2019: Hi, Mimi! Thank you so much for your comment to really just depends on what you want for the Inquisition. Poppy (author) from Enoshima, Japan on January 28, 2019: Hi, there. Don't worry too much about approval (unless it's dropping below 50) because with the conversation with Florianne, you can get it all back very easily. As for the bell never ringing, does this mean you've never been able to get you. On the point of the poi	pt dying over and over so I looked it up and this gh it!Prpich on September 05, 2019:Yeah i dont i. I agree; none of them are particularly likable, so it games and the masked Empire, ugh. Never know who to to the end of this quest? If so, it sounds like a st. I've NEVER been able to get the second bell to ring. I've met Morrigan, and gone to the servant's quarters, where my approval keeps dropping and I have NO idea what direction to head in once I've been attacked in the garden.g. Your guide helps a bit, but I still don't know if I am supposed to go to the servant quarters BEFORE the second bell ring awful questline over and over and over and over and over and overand still not be able to get to that second bell. and the epilogue doesn't mention anything about elven rights for them. On the other hand, Gaspard has motivation to try to bump Briala off that Celene doesn't have, Briala might be overthrown. Maybe she'd be able to do more for the elves in the long run with Celene if her plans with Gaspard are going inquisition around at the end partly so that she can have some backup if I do a Briala/Gaspard route. The thought of being left with Gaspard if he does shake Briala has a pretty badass speech and I liked putting a lesbian ruling couple in charge. I put them on nequisition. It became pretty unsatisfying to pair them when I read that Celene fetishized Briala, constantly let her down, killed Briala's family and burned down the alienage. Briala is no babe in the woods and she can make her own decisions, but I feel like I'm not doing her any personal favors by having doesn't really care about the elves and is willing to fuck them over when it suits her (at least she's not enthusiastic about that is a very low bar). She is a terrible lover to Briala and honesty in general is no babe in the ruling. In Orlais I suppose you need to be slippery though. At least she is runding might be overthrown. Maybe in the future Celene will try to do right by her? That's probably naive. She is a proponent for educational access and seems less warmongering than Gaspard. In Orlais I suppose you need to be slippery though. At least she is a proponent for educational cases and is an enemy to the elves and can be an enemy to Ferelden.
